ENROLLMENT IN CITY SCHOOLS IS 2,886 1ST MONTH

Of This Number 1,027 Are in High School, Superintendent
Reports.

MONTHLY PERCENTAGE 94

Three Hundred Fifty Cases of Tardiness Shown During the Month Out of Possible 100,000, Less Than 100 Students Charged With Being Late.

Some interesting figures on school attendance for the first month of the term are secured through the report filed by Superintendent B. J. Smith to the state authorities. The state is asking for compliance with the strictest terms of the school law this year and in order to keep in touch with the situation in many districts has required every superintendent to file a complete report of every grade and school at the close of each month.

Superintendent Smith's report shows that in Connellsville there is a total enrollment of 2,886 pupils in all the schools of which number 1,027 attend the high school. The percentage of attendance for the month is 94.4. In September there were 52,000 school days actually attended by Connellsville students out of a possible 54,121. Of the total enrollment in the schools there are 2,023 of compulsory age—between eight and 16 years. There are 520 who do not come under this law.

An interesting fact is disclosed through the report of the superintendent. In the senior class at the high school there is one student under the compulsory age. Another fact disclosed is that very few people wait until their children have reached the compulsory age—eight years—before starting them to school. Of the 334 students in the first grade the average age is 7.2, while in the eighth grade it is 13.2. The average age of the students in the high school is 16.2.

During the month there were 350 cases of tardiness out of a possible 100,000. There were 236 different students guilty of tardiness. Children not of age governed by law were employed 119. One of the students was employed as a janitor. The law was not observed by the law, and then prosecution was not started. All but three got their children into school. The three who failed to do so were arrested and fined.

The report shows that when students are not of age to attend school, the parents are not notified. The percentage of attendance of students of compulsory age is 92.2 and that of those governed by law is 93.1 per cent.

The Connellsville authorities are asking for the closing of the school year on time and are driving for a perfect record of attendance.

The boat was on its way to Prince Rupert B. C. when the accident occurred. We were about five or six miles out in heavy fog and struck a rock about 1 o'clock Wednesday morning. The boat was up and I looked out. I did not realize what was wrong so I went back to my quarters. I felt the boat listing and thinking something had happened started to dress taking my time. I heard voices one shouting "Shes listing" so I got a move on. I had everything on except one shoe and a collar when the mate came to the cabin for everyone to go on deck. ## M'ADOO DEFENDS LEAGUE COVENANT IN ADDRESS HERE

One of Greatest Documents Ever
Conceived by Human Mind His View.

William C. McAdoo, former secretary of the treasury and director general of railroads of the United States, speaking before an audience in the Solomon theatre yesterday afternoon, defended the League of Nations covenant as brought back from France by President Wilson and asked that voters forget party lines in the election next month to vote for the Democratic candidate, Governor James M. Cox of Ohio.

URGES PARTY LINE BREAK

Would Vote for Harding if He Were for League and Cox Were Not Former Secretary of Treasury Tells Audience at the Solomon Theatre.

There must be a league of nations to preserve the future peace of the world, the former secretary said. He defended President Wilson's rejection of Republican reservations because, he said, instead of only clarifying the meaning of the various sections it destroyed them.

The league he said would surely prevent war. The economic boycott provided for in that league he said would survive that isolationism even if Britain using that league, explaining what a boycott would accomplish. He described the league as good business, declaring it would enable foreign nations to get back to normal and begin the payment of their debts which in turn would reduce taxation here.

The league, McAdoo said, was a great document conceived by human mind and saved only by human mind. He said that James M. Cox was against the league and Warren G. Harding for it as a Democrat. He said that he was a Democrat and that he would vote for the Democratic candidate, Governor James M. Cox of Ohio.

WEAKNESSES AND DANGERS OF THE UNAMENDED LEAGUE OF NATIONS COVENANT

PART II

Will Breed, Not Prevent, War.

Article X, which President Wilson has called the heart of the covenant, has aroused the sharpest criticism of any provision of this celebrated document. The objections of both Democrats and Republicans to this article are based upon the firm conviction that acceptance of Article X would mean that the United States would be constantly called upon to face the perils of foreign controversy and bloodshed throughout the world and that the sons of American mothers would be on call to fight and die in every quarter of the globe for causes in which their own country had no interest whatever, as evident from a careful reading of the article which follows.

"The members of the League undertake to respect and preserve as against external aggression the territorial integrity and existing political independence of all members of the League. In case of any such aggression or in case of any threat or danger of such aggression the Council shall advise upon the means by which this obligation shall be fulfilled."

Article XI supplements the foregoing by declaring that "any war or threat of war, whether immediately affecting any of the members of the League or not, is a matter of concern to the whole League and the League shall take any action that may be deemed wise and effectual to safeguard the peace of nations. By this article the League assumes war-declaring powers for all member nations. Unwilling to surrender the constitutional right of Congress alone to declare war and refusing to place our boys and our wealth at the beck and call of the quarrelling greedy and corrupt governments of Europe in order to insure their perpetration, the Senate has declared the unalterable purpose of the United States to consent to no form of foreign control and has reiterated its determined refusal to assume obligations requiring it to protect foreign countries from external aggression; of to preserve their territorial integrity and political independence; of to follow the reservation to Article X and XI.

"The United States assumes no obligation to preserve the territorial integrity or political independence of any other country by the employment of its military or naval forces, its resources, or any form of economic disorganization, or to interfere in any way in controversies between nations, including all controversies relating to territorial integrity or political independence, whether members of the league or not, under the provisions of Article 10, or to employ the military or naval forces of the United States under any article of the treaty for any purpose, unless in any particular case the Congress, which, under the Constitution, has the sole power to declare war or authorize the employment of the military or naval forces of the United States, shall, in the exercise of its liberty of action, by act or joint resolution, so provide."

Extends Jurisdiction to Domestic Questions.

By the terms of Article XII the members of the League "agree that if here should arise between them any dispute likely to lead to rupture they will submit the matter either to arbitration or to inquiry by the Council and they agree in no case to resort to war until three months after the report of the Council. Article XIII declares disputes as to the interpretation of a treaty, as to any question of international law, as to the existence of any fact which if established would constitute a breach of any treaty, national obligation, or as to the extent and nature of the reparation to be made for any such breach," to be among those which are generally suitable for submission to arbitration. Articles XIV and XV define the procedure in submission of disputes to the Council of the League.

The powers conferred upon the League as contained in Articles XII and XIII being so broad as to include decisions upon matters over which the member nations should alone have jurisdiction, the Senate dissented therefrom in the following reservation:

"The United States reserves to itself exclusively the right to decide what questions are within its domestic jurisdiction, and declares that all domestic and political questions relating wholly or in part to its internal affairs, including immigration, labor, coastwise traffic, the tariff, commerce, the suppression of the traffic in women and children, and in opium and other dangerous drugs, and all other domestic questions, are solely within the jurisdiction of the United States and are not under this treaty to be submitted in any way either to arbitration or to the consideration of the Council or of the assembly of the League of Nations, or any agency thereof, or to the decision or recommendation of any other power."

Impairs Rights of Citizens of U. S.

Should any member of the League ratify Article XVI, "desert to war in disregard of its covenants under Article 12, 13 or 15," it shall thus have been deemed to have committed an act of war against all other members of the League, which hereby undertake immediately to subject it to the severance of all trade or financial relations, the prohibition of all intercourse between their nationals and the nationals of the covenant-breaking state, and the prevention of all financial, commercial or personal intercourse between the nationals of the covenant-breaking state and the nationals of any other state whether a member of the League or not."

The boycott this article would impose upon the nationals of a covenant-breaking state being so inclusive as to prevent citizens of the United States having relations of any kind with such nationals residing in the United States or in countries other than the covenant-breaking state, it is held by the Senate to impair the individual rights of citizens, hence, the reservation which follows:

"The United States reserves the right to permit, in its discretion, the nationals of a covenant-breaking state, as defined in Article 16 of the covenant, the League of Nations, residing within the United States or in countries other than such covenant-breaking state, to continue their commercial, financial, and personal relations with the nationals of the United States."

And to think after all the expenditure of effort and means to import a measure to a people who did not so much as mention it as a source of protest against the outrages of the Committee!

Is there any other national honor Ohio would like to have this year?

It was a pretty how-do-it have McAdoo undo the McAdoo plans by rejecting to give Brice a boost during his brief day that he spent here.

There can be no appeal from the decision of the League in the Protocol Home Circle debate that woman is superior to man. Even the woman admit it. What more man thinks about it doesn't matter.

Among Democrats the decision of 1900 to the Republican Nation Committee is becoming more and more popular form of matching the first dent.

Wouldn't it be better for Son in the McAdoo to spend his time in New Jersey to the United States, the 100,000 in line who have declared themselves in favor of reservations to the Wilson League of Nations?

Will the 100,000 in line who have declared themselves in favor of reservations to the Wilson League of Nations, in the following reservation to Article X and XI?

"The United States assumes no obligation to preserve the territorial integrity or political independence of any other country by the employment of its military or naval forces, its resources, or any form of economic disorganization, or to interfere in any way in controversies between nations, including all controversies relating to territorial integrity or political independence, whether members of the league or not, under the provisions of Article 10, or to employ the military or naval forces of the United States under any article of the treaty for any purpose, unless in any particular case the Congress, which, under the Constitution, has the sole power to declare war or authorize the employment of the military or naval forces of the United States, shall, in the exercise of its liberty of action, by act or joint resolution, so provide."

dependents, reserved as Liberty bonds, and rendered such a lovely volume of service that it is impossible to enumerate all.

Some idea of the kind of service rendered to both ex-service men and civilians can be had from the following list of cases on which representative different corners of the chapter territory.

A citizen of the United States of Polish birth at the outbreak of the war left this country and joined the Polish army. He lost a leg in the service. The Polish government makes no provision for the furnishing of artificial limbs. After the war he came back to Fayette county to reside. Because he was not in the United States army no artificial limb could be provided by the government. The Red Cross secured for him an artificial limb and helped him get re-established in the community in which he had lived before the war.

A disabled soldier in the United States army was first discharged on April 15, 1918. He is paralyzed in the right side arm and leg. The county Board of Directors in a room in Uniontown where he can be given proper medical attention. The Red Cross nurses render service to him daily. He is being aided in the securing of his government compensation and other relief was problems and a private tutor has been furnished him in order that he can be properly fitted up to a government vocational training.

Another case is that of a widower with three small children on all under school age. The father has no position to look after the children while he is away with the army. He is compelled to keep them at night in order that they will sleep during his absence in the daytime. So seldom had these children seen day light that they were compelled to sleep during the day when taken outside by one of the Red Cross workers. This problem was solved by having a man and his wife board with the family and care for the children.

Still another case is that of a widow with eight children. They lived in a very unwholesome and in an entire community and in a house that was not fit to be inhabited. They were placed in a good house with good appliances and surroundings, properly provided for the whole family is now contented and happy. A lot of the children of school age in school. So soon as they are capable of doing so they are sent to work in the community. The Red Cross has been granted to make this home service work permanent doing social service work with the children in any other organization than that of the Red Cross, covered by the chapter according to the method as outlined by the American Red Cross.

SALTS IF BACKACHE AND KIDNEYS HURT

Stop Eating Meat for a While if Your Bladder Is Troubling You.

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sore, inflamed and lazy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels; removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells, your stomach sour, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Little consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is a life saver for regular meal eaters. It is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink.—Adv.

For World Peace.
The Government of the United States should initiate a movement to dissolve the mischievous organization called the "League of Nations" and to create an international parliament, composed of democratically elected representatives of all nations of the world, based upon the recognition of their equal rights, the principle of self-determination, the right to national existence of colonies and other dependencies, freedom of international trade and trade routes by land and sea, and universal disarmament, and be charged with revising the Treaty of Peace on the principles of justice and conciliation. All war debts and other debts of the Federal Government should immediately be paid in full, the funds for such payment to be raised by means of a progressive property tax, whose burden should fall upon the rich and particularly upon great fortunes made during the war.—From Socialist Platform of 1920.—Adv. 14-11

LOWER PRICE DEMONSTRATION!

Sale Begins Tomorrow--Friday

You Have Expected Lower Prices--The Big Store Now Offers Them to You

This Announcement—by far the most startling ever made by this store—should cause the most unusual response ever won by a Kobacker advertisement. If the public realizes the full force of this statement The Big Store will not be large enough to accommodate the crowds, and within 24 hours the news will be flashed throughout this part of the state that Kobackers have again set the pace.

The market in many lines has broken. In some cases it has fallen very sharply. The public, undoubtedly, has a right to share in the lowered prices.

And the Kobacker store comes and says to you that everything in it—everything—is priced so as to take advantage of every possible market condition. Every instance where the market has been lowered—and we have our ears to it every hour, whether that lowering has been big or little—Kobacker prices have been made to meet it.

Thousands and thousands of dollars worth of merchandise—the largest stocks ever under The Kobacker store roof—are now here, and every dollar's worth of this merchandise is now priced in accordance with the new low prices; regardless of its cost to us.

Henry Ford led the automobile manufacturers in price reduction by announcing lower prices for motor cars. The Big Store is leading Dry Goods merchants in Connellsville with this announcement.

Just at this minute you, the public, are looking for and demanding, as you have a right to demand—lowered prices.

To repeat the big idea back of this announcement—No matter what its cost to us; no matter what loss such action makes necessary—everything in this store is so priced as to meet every possible market drop. You can be assured of lower prices here always.

HIGH SCHOOL WORKING HARD TO BE IN SHAPE FOR LATROBE SATURDAY

Coach Rupp Drives All-Canoe
dues Through Grilling Practice

SCRUBS PLAY TOMORROW

C. H. S. team went through a grilling practice last night under Coach Rupp. He kept up a constant peppering of orders to his men which kept them on their toes all the time. The scrubs played a troublesome bunch last night, and the Varsity had to hands full to handle them. The men who had about resigned to their fate as second stringers are picking up new hope, believing they may yet be able to out a regular from the berth.

The memory of Saturday's defeat still lingers in the mind of the team and to a man the glow is determined such another catastrophe shall not take place.

Coach Rupp is trying Whiskey out as a punter. It is an oddity for the local high school, but the team this year is without a reliable punter.

Judging from the "faced out" appearance of some of the team towards the close of last week's contest, a little conditioning by a men would be a big advantage in a hard fought game.

The reserves go to Mount Pleasant tomorrow afternoon when the high school team of that place will be played. Judging from the way the reserves threw back the Varsity last night, the second string youngsters will come back "with the bacon."

TICKETS GOING WELL
FOUR SATURDAY FIGHT

Judging from the great sale there is considerable interest being taken in the Carver-Donnelly fight set for Saturday night at the Starling hall in the West Side. Ticket stations in the city are doing a good business and it begins to look as though at least one fight promoted locally will be a success.

The bout has been talked of so long that fight fans are anxious to see the two men mix it now that the "on counter" has finally been arranged.

SIX FOREST FIRE HAZARDS IN FAYETTE COUNTY REPORTED

Three in Stewart Township, Three in Springfield; Sawmill Run Flared.

HARRISBURG, Oct. 13.—Six forest fire hazards in Fayette County were reported to the Pennsylvania Department of Forestry this week by Forester V. M. Bearer of Elizabethtown. He located two of them in Georges township, three in Stewart township and one in Springfield township.

Forester Bearer regarded the fire hazards as menacing to timberlands in the vicinity. Four of them were sawmills operating without satisfactory precautions against the escape of fire from the engines, and the other two hazards were dinky engines running through woodlands. In his report to the forestry department, Forester Bearer said any one of the five hazards, if not eliminated, might result in the destruction of thousands of acres of timber on Chestnut Ridge and Laurel Hill mountains.

In an effort to locate and remove other similar conditions in his fire protection district, Forester Bearer has interviewed many fire wardens, instructing them to report to him the existence of conditions that may result in destructive forest fires. Forester Bearer reported that Charles Delviller of Connelville has paid $150 to the Department of Forestry for allowing a forest fire to start from sparks-carried from his mill into surrounding woodlands.

THE GREAT SHADOW

By
A. CONAN DOYLE

The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes

Copyright by A. Conan Doyle.

"Take it away!" said Jim, his face stiff with anger. "I'll give you fresh meat!"

Jim caught hold of the bottle, and sent it flying over the garden hedge. "It's very good for those who wish to forget," said he; "I am going to remember."

"May God forgive you for sinning!" cried my father aloud.

"And for well-nigh branding an officer of His Majesty's infantry," said old Major Elliott, putting his head over the hedge. "You have done with a nip after a morning's walk, but it is something new to have a whole bottle whizz past my ear. But what is amiss, that you all stand round like nutters at a burning?"

In a few words I told him our trouble, while Jim, with a gray face and his brows drawn down, stood leaning against the door-post. The major was as glum as we by the time I had finished, for he was fond both of Jim and Edie.

"But, but!" said he. "I feared something of the kind ever since that business of the pea-tower. It's the way with the French. They can't leave the women alone! But at least De Lissac has married her, and that's a comfort. But it's no use now to talk of our little troubles; with all Europe in a roar again, and another twenty years' war before us, as like as not."

"What d'ye mean?" I asked.

"Why man, Napoleon's back from Elba, his troops have landed to him, and Louis has run for his life. The news was in Berwick this morning."

"Great Lord!" cried my father. "Then the weary business is all to do over again."

"Aye, we thought we were out from the shadow, but it's still there. Wellington is ordered from Vienna to the Low Countries, and it is thought that the emperor will break out first on that side. Well, it's a bad wind that blows nobody any good. I've just had news that I'm to join the Seventy-first as senior major. I am to join my regiment as soon as I can, and we shall be over yonder in a month, and in Paris, maybe, before another one is over."

"By the Lord, then, I'm with you, major!" cried Jim Horcroft. "I'm not too proud to carry a musket, if you will put me in front of this Frenchman."

"My lad, I'd be proud to have you serve under me," said the major. "And as to De Lissac, where the emperor is he will be."

"You know the man," said I; "what can you tell us of him?"

"There is no better officer in the French army, and that is a big word to say. They say that he would have been a marshal, but he preferred to stay at the emperor's elbow. I met him two days before Corunna, when I was sent with a flag to speak about our wounded. He was with Scott then. I knew him again when I saw him."

"And I will know him again when I see him," said Horcroft, with the old look on his face.

And then at that instant, as I stood there, it was suddenly driven home to me how poor and purposeless a life I should lead while this crippled friend of mine and the companion of my boyhood were away in the forefront of the storm. Quick as a flash my resolution was taken.

"I'll come with you, too, major," I cried.

"Jack! Jack!" said my father, wringing his hands.

Jim said nothing, but he put his arm round me and hugged me. The major's eyes shone and he flourished his cane in the air.

"My word! but I shall have two good recruits at my heels," said he. "Well, there's no time to be lost, so you must both be ready for the evening coach."

And this was what a single day brought about. Next day, as I pass away so often without a change. Just think of the alteration in that four-and-twenty hours. De Lissac was gone. Edie was gone. Napoleon had escaped. War had broken out. Jim Horcroft had left everything, and he and I were setting out to fight against the French. It was all like a dream, until I tramped off to the coach that evening, and looked back at the gray farmstead and at the two little dark figures—my mother, with her face sunk in her shawl, and my father, waving his drooping stick to bid me adieu upon my way.

CHAPTER XI.

The Gathering of the Nations.

And now I come to a bit of my story that does make me wish that I had never taken the job of telling it in hand. But you can find the cause and reason of everything in the books about history, and so I shall just leave that alone and talk about what I saw with my own eyes and heard with my own ears.

The regiment to which our friend had been appointed was the Seventy-first Highland Light Infantry, which were the red coat and the trowsers, and had its depot in Glasgow town. There we went, all three, by coach, the major in great spirits and full of stories about the Duke and the Peninsula, while Jim sat in the corner, with his lips set and his arms folded, and I knew that he killed De Lissac three times an hour in his heart. I could tell it by the sudden glint of his eyes and grip of his hand.

We were in Glasgow next day, and the major took us down to the depot, where a soldier with three stripes on his arm and a distaff of ribbons from his cap showed every tooth he had in his head at the sight of Jim, and walked three times round him, to have the view of him as if he had been Curly's castle. Then he came over to me and felt my musket, and was well pleased as pleased as Jim.

"These are the sort, major; these are the sort," he kept saying. "With a thousand of these we could stand up to Bonap's best."

"How do they run?" asked the major.

"A poor show," said he, "but they may look into shape. The best men have been drafted to America, and we are full of militia and volunteers." "But, but!" said the major. "We've had old soldiers and good ones against us. Come to me if you need any help, you two." And so, with a nod, he left us, and we began to understand that a major who is even officer is a very different person from a major who happens to be your neighbor in the country.

Soon came the news that the folk at Vienna, who had been cutting up Europe as if it had been a flag of Gullion, had flown back, each to his own country, and that every man and horse in their armies had their faces toward France.

We heard of great reviews and military parades in Paris too, and then that Wellington was in the Low Countries, and that on us and on the Prussians would fall the first blow. The government was shipping men to him as fast as they could, and every port along the east coast was choked with guns and horses and stores. On the third of June we had our marching orders, and on the same day we took ship from Leth, reaching Ostend the night after. From there we went on to a place called Bruges, and from there to Ghent, where we pitched up with the Fifty-second and the Ninety-fifth, which were the two regiments that we were brigaded with. It's a wonderful place for churches and stonework, is Ghent, and, indeed, of all the towns we were in there was scarce one but had a finer kirk than any in Glasgow. From there we pushed on to Ath, which is a little village on a river, or a burn, rather, called the Dender. There we were quartered in tents, mostly, for it was fine, sunny weather, and the whole brigade set to work at its drill from morning till evening.

General Adams was our chief and Regent was our colonel, and they were both first-rate soldiers, but what put heart into us most was to think that we were under the Duke, for his name was like a bugle call. He was at Brussels with the bulk of the army, but we knew that we should see him quick enough if we were needed.

I had never seen so many English together, and indeed I had a kind of contempt for them, as folk always have if they live near a border. But the two regiments that were with us now were as good comrades as could be wished. The Fifty-second had a thousand men in the ranks, and there were many old soldiers of the Peninsula among them. They came from Oxfordshire for the most part. The Ninety-fifth were a rifle regiment, and had dark-green coats instead of red. It was strange to see them loading, for they would put the ball in a greasy rag and then hammer it down with a mallet, but they could fire both farther and straighter than we. All that part of Belgium was covered with British troops at that time, for the Guards were over near England, and there were cavalry regiments on the farther side of us. You see, it was very necessary that Wellington should spread out all his force, for Bonap was behind the screen of his fortresses, and of course we had no means of saying on what side he might pop out, except that he was pretty sure to come the way that we least expected him. On the one side he might get between us and the sea, and so cut us off from England; and on the other he might shore in between the Prussians and ourselves. But the Duke was as clever as he, for he had his horse and his light troops all around him, like a green spider's web, so that the moment the French foot stepped across the border he could close up all his men at the right place.

For myself, I was very happy at Ath, and I found the folk very kindly and helpful. There was a farmer of the name of Bois, in whose fields we were quartered, who was a real good friend to many of us. We built him a wooden barn among us in our spare time, and made a fine fire and a hot bath, my room-mate man, have hung out his washing, for the smell of the wet linen seemed to take us both straight home as nothing else could do. I have often wondered whether that good man and his wife are still living, though I think it hardly likely, for they were of a hot middle age at the time. Jim would come with us, too sometimes, and would sit with us smoking in the big Flemish kitchen, but he was a different Jim now to the old one. He had always had a hard touch in him, but now his trouble seemed to have turned him to flint, and I never saw a smile upon his face, and seldom heard a word from his lips. His whole mind was set on revenge, and he would sit for hours, with his chin upon his hands, glaring and frowning, and wrapped up in the one idea. This made him a bit of a butt among the men at first, and they laughed at him for it; but when they came to know him better they found that he was not a good man to laugh at, and they dropped it.

Senreco

keeps teeth clean AND GUMS HEALTHY.

Keeping the gums healthy and the mouth sweet is very important to health; more teeth are lost through the loosening of the tissue that holds the teeth in place than from decay.

Dental science to-day demands that a tooth paste must keep the gums healthy as well as clean the teeth.

Senreco was formulated to meet this requirement. Hundreds of dentists are prescribing and using Senreco because they have found that it does measure up to that standard.

SENRECO IS A WONDERFUL CLEANSER.

In addition to its remedial properties Senreco is a wonderful cleanser; acts directly on the mucin film, the basis of tartar; leaves the mouth cool and clean-feeling. As some one has expressed it—Senreco gives one a new life on mouth cleanliness.

Get a tube to-day at your druggist or toilet counter—enjoy the healthy, cleanly feeling it gives you your mouth and gums. Notice how brilliantly white Senreco makes your teeth. It performs this two-fold service for you and yet costs no more than the ordinary, old-fashioned tooth paste that simply cleans the teeth and leaves a pleasant taste—

185 audiences tried it this way

MOST people know that the musical enjoyment which they get out of a phonograph depends upon one thing. That thing is the phonograph's realism.

This picture shows the best way to take a phonograph's realism. Miss Betsy Lane Shepherd, the famous soprano, is standing beside the New Edison, and singing in direct comparison with the New Edison's RE-CREATION of her voice.

185 audiences, aggregating more than 100,000 people, have actually heard this comparison. None could distinguish between her living voice and its RE-CREATION.

This is one of the phenomenal records of realism. The New Edison holds all other records of realism, too, because no other phonograph attempts this comparison-test—or could sustain it.

"IT'S A GREAT LIFE"—A splendid attraction, featuring an all-star cast, is being shown today. Stoddard and his chum, "The Wop," are at the top of the list. "The Wop" is a Great Life, but from the divergent points of view. Stoddard is growing fast and largely concerned with supplying his body with material. "The Wop" finds a pearl in an oyster and begins to build a dream empire in the South Sea Isles, where he believes pearls are scattered along the sands by oyster-eating natives. He confides in Stoddard, electing him emperor of the "Savage Islands." The office of prime minister and military leader for himself. Stoddard is infatuated and it looks as though he might be compelled to go. He receives one demerit after another for his awkward pranks. The boys actually set forth with guns and dynamite to a liberal supply of food, but Stoddard falters. A new girl has come. She is so attractive that he forgets a former dame. After eating a large part of their supplies Stoddard decides to do some pearl-hunting at home. He puts a rabbit in "The Wop's" office, his same bag and, before the new girl is a savage hunter. So intense is his passion that he goes to a neighboring lunch counter and eats several dozen raw oysters in hopes of finding a pearl for his loved one. "The Wop" makes estimates in a meeting on the roof with "The Wop," where the latter cuts off escape to prevent Stoddard from a supposed elopement with the new girl.

THE PARAMOUNT.

"THE COUNTRY GOD FORGOT."—A story of the western wastes and a man's love for a woman, is today's feature attraction. In this picture a prominent cast has been assembled. Including Tom Satchel, George F. Zett and Mary Charlton, red blooded heroes, honest, self-sacrificing, intelligent, crime and sincere love, are shown in the picture. Mr. Satchel will be remembered for his excellent work in "The Spiders." He is now being starred by Goldwyn. Friday and Saturday Marie Dore, the popular screen star, will appear in "Midnight Gambols," a story with startling and dramatic contrasts. It is a picture which is different not only because of its higher dramatic plane, but for its rare power to hold and interest to the last degree every class of audience.

SCOTCH PRESCRIPTION FOR CATARRH PROVES SUCCESSFUL AS HAY FEVER PREVENTATIVE

When Scotch people catch cold or want to speedily rid themselves of catarrh, they have a wonderful liquid which they sprinkle on a handkerchief, hold it to the nostrils and breathe deeply into the lungs. This liquid which is called Haslanol and is the formula of a prominent physician, has proved very successful as a Hay Fever preventive, explained an international traveler in New York only this spring, "but it must be used before the expected attack."

An investigation proved that the better class of pharmacists in America have been selling Haslanol for some time.

Haslanol produces a highly antiseptic, pungent, penetrating, yet pleasant to the senses, that, passing over the tender mucous membrane of the air passages, destroys all harmful germs at the same time, heals and soothes the abnormal tissues.

An interesting folder which comes with each vial tells of various clever ways of using Haslanol to prevent Hay Fever and Colds and do away with Catarrh of the nose, throat, and eyes. Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Wagner in Connellsville.

Home-made Remedy Stops Coughs Quickly

The best cough medicine you ever saw. A family supply easily and quickly made. Takes about 15 minutes.

You might be surprised to know that the best thing you can use for a severe cough is a remedy which is easily prepared at home in just a few moments. It's cheap, but for prompt results it beats anything else you ever tried. Usually stops the ordinary cough or chest cold in 24 hours. Tastes pleasant, too—children like it—and it is pure and good.

Four 2½ ounces of Pinex in a pint bottle; then fill it up with plain granulated sugar syrup. Or use clarified molasses, honey, or pure syrup, instead of sugar syrup, if desired. Thus you make a full pint—a family supply—but costing no more than a small bottle of ready-made cough syrup.

And as a cough medicine, there is really nothing better to be had at any price. It goes right to the spot and gives quick, lasting relief. It promptly breaks the inflamed membranes that line the throat and air passages, stops the annoying throat tickle, loosens the phlegm, and soon your cough stops entirely. Splendid for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway pine extract, famous for its healing effect on the mucous membranes. To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

In the soft shadings and delicate tracings of a fine rug lies its call for admiration. Maintenance of these charms is an important Hoover function. Rapidly its electric sweeping reveals anew the colorings dimmed by soot, and brushes straight any nap disarranged by heels. At the same time it beats out all destructive embedded grit, withdraws stubborn, clinging litter and thoroughly suction cleans. Only The Hoover does all this.
